The Social Justice Movements website showcases dynamic social change organizations in New York City working for social justice in areas such as: Labor, civil rights, immigrant right, feminism, LGBT rights, welfare rights, youth/Hip Hop activism, police monitoring/community protection, education, peace, environmental justice, and anti-globalization.

Social Movements & Culture: A Resource Site

http://culturalpolitics.net/social_movements

Provides a space for the study of social movements in the U.S., including those movements linked to transnational and global movements. Their emphasis is on recent and contemporary movements, but they also aim to provide materials on earlier movements. They are particularly interested in helping develop work on the cultural dimension of social movements.
